

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Access to verified personal background data is provided in the form of an electronic document that includes a data record having personal 5 background data and corresponding verification information as well as an electronic authentication of the contents of the data record. The data record is associated with a unique identifier. The electronic document may be distributed over a communication network to a person providing the identifier.